SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION:

I. Background

The American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 (ARPA) reauthorized and amended the Small Business Jobs Act of 2010 (SBJA) to provide $10 billion to fund the State Small Business Credit Initiative (SSBCI) as a response to the economic effects of the COVID-19 pandemic.¹ SSBCI is a federal program administered by the U.S. Department of the Treasury (Treasury) that was created to strengthen the programs of eligible jurisdictions that support private financing for small businesses. Eligible jurisdictions include states, territories, Tribal governments, and eligible municipalities. SSBCI is expected to, in conjunction with new small business financing, create billions of dollars in lending to, and investments in, small businesses.

II. Summary of the Interim Final Rule

A. Authority, scope, and purpose.

Treasury has authority under the SSBCI statute to issue a rule on collecting demographics-related data of those who own or control small businesses that participate in SSBCI for purposes of implementation, compliance and reporting, and understanding program outcomes.² First, issuing this interim final rule is important for the implementation of and compliance with the program requirements regarding allocations related to business enterprises that are owned and controlled by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals (SEDI-owned and controlled businesses). ARPA provides $1.5 billion of capital funding to be allocated based on the needs of SEDI-owned and controlled businesses (SEDI allocation),³ $1.0 billion of capital funding for an incentive program for jurisdictions that demonstrate robust support for SEDI-owned and controlled businesses in the deployment of previously allocated SSBCI capital funding (SEDI incentive allocation),⁴ and $500 million for technical assistance to, in part, SEDI-owned and controlled businesses.⁵ ARPA also states that the $1.5 billion SEDI allocation must be expended for SEDI-owned and controlled businesses.⁶ The $1.5 billion SEDI allocation and $1.0 billion SEDI incentive allocation are intended to address the widespread challenges that these businesses have faced in light of the COVID-19 pandemic.⁷ The technical assistance funding is to help, in part, SEDI-owned and controlled businesses that are applying to receive a loan, investment, or other credit or equity support under the SSBCI. The information reported under this interim final rule will help Treasury determine the extent to which SSBCI funds have been provided to SEDI-owned and controlled businesses.

Second, this interim final rule is being issued to ensure compliance with legal requirements related to nondiscrimination and nondiscriminatory uses of federal funds, where such laws are applicable to a participating jurisdiction and any contracted entity operating SSBCI programs on the jurisdiction's behalf because all SSBCI funds are considered federal financial assistance for purposes of such requirements. These legal requirements include, but are not limited to, Title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 and Treasury's regulations at 31 CFR Part 22, which require recipients of SSBCI funding to maintain and submit racial and ethnic data of beneficiaries that receive federal financial assistance.⁸

Third, issuing this interim final rule is important for SSBCI implementation and compliance because some participating jurisdictions will partner with lenders or other financial entities that are subject to laws that prohibit these entities from inquiring about the race, color, religion, national origin, or sex of an applicant or any other person in connection with a credit transaction, unless such information is required by a regulation, order, or agreement issued by, or entered into with, an enforcement agency or a court to monitor or enforce compliance with federal or state statutes or regulations. For example, under Regulation B implementing the Equal Credit Opportunity Act, creditors are generally prohibited from inquiring about the race, color, religion, national origin, or sex of an applicant or any other person in connection with a credit transaction, unless an exception applies.⁹ One exception is for certain required information collection "to monitor or enforce compliance with the [Equal Credit Opportunity] Act, [Regulation B], or other Federal or state statutes or regulations."¹⁰ This interim final rule will facilitate the collection of information that might not otherwise be collected by creditors who will be SSBCI lenders. Treasury expects that, in accordance with this interim final rule, participating jurisdictions will contract with lenders and other financial entities to implement ⁹ See 12 CFR § 1002.5(b).

⁸ 31 CFR § 22.6(b),

¹⁰ 12 CFR § 1002.5(a)(2).

SSBCI programs and collect this information. Lenders and other financial entities participating in SSBCI must request the demographic information described in this interim final rule, and collect and report such information certified by authorized representatives of participating small businesses. Although such lenders and other financial entities must collect and report such information, participating small businesses have the option to choose “prefer not to respond” or to not respond by leaving the request blank. This interim final rule does not require verification of responses provided by participating small businesses. Treasury believes that requiring verification of small business-provided responses would greatly increase the operational burden of the interim final rule.

Finally, this interim final rule is important for understanding SSBCI program outcomes. Such information will allow Treasury to analyze and report on the populations that SSBCI funding is benefiting.

B. Definitions and Reporting Requirements

Under this interim final rule, each jurisdiction that participates in SSBCI must submit an annual report to Treasury that includes the following data: self-certified SEDI demographics-related business status; minority-owned or controlled business status; women-owned or controlled business status; veteran-owned or controlled business status; and the race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, Middle Eastern or North African ancestry, and veteran status with which principal owners identify. For each business that receives a loan, investment, or other credit or equity support under the SSBCI, the reported data must be based on the ownership and control of the business immediately before the consummation of such loan, investment, or other credit or equity support-related transaction. For each business that receives technical assistance under the SSBCI, the reported data must be based on the ownership and control of the business at the time it receives such technical assistance. The self-certified SEDI demographics-related business status variable reflects one group of SEDI-owned and controlled businesses on which jurisdictions may expend their portion of the $1.5 billion SEDI allocation and their portion of technical assistance funding.¹¹ Loan, investment, or other credit or equity support-related transactions conducted with self-certified SEDI demographics-related businesses may also count toward earning a participating jurisdiction’s portion of the $1.0 billion SEDI incentive allocation. The definition of “owned and controlled,” which is used in the definition of SEDI demographics-related business, is based on the statutory definition of “business enterprise owned and controlled by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals,” which includes prongs for three types of organizations: private businesses, public businesses, and mutual institutions.¹² For example, 51 percent ownership of a private institution is a sufficient condition to fulfill the ownership-and-control requirement for a business to be a self-certified SEDI demographics-related business.

Under this interim final rule, Treasury will also collect information on whether the business is majority-owned or controlled by minority individuals, females, or veterans. These data elements do not affect the determination of SEDI-owned and controlled business status. The SSBCI statute does not define “owned or controlled” for purposes of these categories. Therefore, the definition of “owned or controlled” for purposes of these terms are based both on the definition of “business enterprise owned and controlled by socially and economically disadvantaged individuals” in the SSBCI statute¹³ and also on the control prong of the definition of “beneficial owner” in the Financial Crimes Enforcement Network’s (FinCEN) customer due diligence (CDD) rule, which requires covered financial institutions to establish and maintain ¹¹ For more information on all eligible groups of businesses on which jurisdictions may expend their SSBCI SEDI allocation funds, please see the SSBCI Capital Program Policy Guidelines published on Treasury’s website.

¹² See 12 U.S.C. 5701(15).

written procedures that are reasonably designed to identify and verify beneficial owners of legal entity customers.¹⁴ In choosing this approach, Treasury considered that the “beneficial owner” definition under FinCEN’s CDD rule is already widely in use, and that most financial institutions are likely familiar with the standard, because many of them are required to comply with the CDD rule. Accordingly, a business can be a minority-owned or controlled business, women-owned or controlled business, or veteran-owned or controlled business (as applicable) if (1) the applicable prong under the definition of “owned and controlled” explained above is met or (2) one or more minority individuals, females, or veterans, respectively, have the power to exercise a controlling influence over the management, direction, or policies of the business.

Under this interim final rule, Treasury will further collect the race, ethnicity, gender, sexual orientation, Middle Eastern or North African ancestry, and veteran status with which the principal owners of all businesses that participate in SSBCI transactions that occurred in the preceding calendar year identify. These data elements also do not affect the determination of SEDI-owned and controlled business status. Treasury defines the term “principal owner” based on the ownership prong of the definition of beneficial ownership under FinCEN’s CDD rule. Under this interim final rule, an individual is a principal owner if the individual directly or indirectly, through any contract, arrangement, understanding, relationship or otherwise, owns 25 percent or more of the equity interests of the business.

The categories of responses related to gender under this interim final rule are female, male, non-binary, an option for “prefer to self-describe” with a write-in field that allows for identification in a different manner, “prefer not to respond,” and that the business did not answer. In considering this approach, Treasury reviewed the following information. The Census Bureau’s

Household Pulse Survey includes questions on sex and gender identity. One of these questions asks, “What sex were you assigned at birth, on your original birth certificate?” with responses including male or female. Another question asks, “Do you currently describe yourself as male, female, or transgender?” with responses including male, female, transgender, or none of these.¹⁵ The Department of Defense P1 survey includes a question that asks, “Are you...?” with responses that include male or female.¹⁶ The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Farm Producer Study includes a question that asks “How do you currently describe yourself?” with responses that include male, female, transgender, and none of these, specify (with a space to write-in). The same study also includes a question that asks, “Was your sex recorded as male or female at birth?” with responses that include male or female.¹⁷

The Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s proposed rule for the collection of small business data asks for information on the sex of the principal owner with the response options of female, male, I prefer to self-identify as (with a space to write in), and I do not wish to provide this information.¹⁸ Treasury’s approach is most consistent with the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau’s proposed rule for collection of small business data in that Treasury includes response options of female, male, an option for “prefer to self-describe” with a write-in field (which is similar to the Consumer Financial Protection Bureau proposed rule’s I prefer to self-identify as (with a space to write in)), and an option for “prefer not to respond.” Treasury also includes “non-binary” as a response in order to provide some consistency with other Treasury coronavirus relief programs, such as the Emergency Rental Assistance Program, which collects data on whether award recipients are female, male, non-binary, declined to answer, or data not collected.¹⁹ As businesses may elect to not choose any of the aforementioned responses by leaving the responses blank, Treasury also provides jurisdictions the option to report “the business did not answer.”

In addition, Treasury will collect data regarding the sexual orientation status with which principal owners identify with response options of gay or lesbian; bisexual; straight, that is, not gay, lesbian, or bisexual; something else; an option for the business to choose that it prefers not to respond; or that the business did not answer. Treasury is collecting this information related to sexual orientation to better understand the demographics of the principal owners of businesses receiving SSBCI funds. The collection of this information is expected to provide valuable insights on SSBCI program outcomes and small business ecosystems, along with the performance of businesses owned by individuals who identify as lesbian, gay, or bisexual.

In considering this approach, Treasury reviewed the following information. The Census Bureau’s Household Pulse Survey includes a question on sexual orientation that asks, “Which of the following best represents how you think of yourself?” with responses including gay or lesbian; straight, that is not gay or lesbian; bisexual; something else; or I don’t know.²⁰ The Department of Defense P1 Survey also includes a question on sexual orientation that asks, “How do you describe your sexual orientation? (Select all that apply.)” with responses including heterosexual or straight; lesbian or gay; bisexual, pansexual, or queer; questioning, asexual, demisexual; other; and prefer not to answer.²¹ The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Farm Producer Study includes a question on sexual orientation that asks, “Which of the following best represents how you think of yourself?” with responses including gay or lesbian; straight, that is, not gay or lesbian; bisexual; none of these, specify (with a space to write in); I am not sure yet; and I don’t know what this question means.²² Treasury’s approach is generally consistent with these approaches, and most consistent with the Census Bureau’s Household Pulse Survey, but Treasury’s reporting does not include a response indicating that the individual does not know their sexual orientation, in part because responses from individual small business owners are not required by beneficiaries to receive funding. Treasury’s decision to include an option for “prefer not to respond” is consistent with the Department of Defense’s P1 Survey’s option of “prefer not to answer.” As businesses may elect to not choose any of the aforementioned responses by leaving the responses blank, Treasury also provides jurisdictions the option to report “the business did not answer.”

Treasury will collect information about race and ethnicity statuses with which principal owners identify, consistent with the Office of Management and Budget (OMB) Standards for the Classification of Federal Data on Race and Ethnicity, which govern how questions about race and ethnicity should be asked on all federal collections. There are two ethnicity categories (Hispanic or Latino; and Not Hispanic or Latino) and five minimum race categories (American Indian or Alaska Native; Asian; Black or African American; Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander; and White).²³ Further disaggregation is allowable. For example, many Census Bureau surveys, as well as the Department of Health and Human Services’ (HHS) approach for collecting data for its population studies, offer checkboxes for selected disaggregated categories for Asian (i.e., Asian Indian; Chinese; Filipino; Japanese; Korean; Vietnamese; and Other Asian) as well as for Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander (i.e., Native Hawaiian; Chamorro; Samoan; and Other Pacific Islander).²⁴ The 2020 Census offered respondents the opportunity to, under each of the minimum categories, write in additional specifics. Both minimum categories and disaggregated categories of race and ethnicity are used in the data collection under the Home Mortgage Disclosure Act (HMDA).²⁵ The HMDA data collection also permits individuals to answer with “I do not wish to provide this information.”²⁶

Treasury believes that collecting only the OMB minimum categories of race may mask the effects of SSBCI funds on businesses in jurisdictions with a large population of one OMB minimum category of race and multiple populations of categories of race, and therefore hinder the understanding of program outcomes in these jurisdictions. Thus, this interim final rule provides for the reporting of information consistent with the OMB data collection standard, using the five minimum race categories, in addition to disaggregating the Asian and Native Hawaiian or Other Pacific Islander categories, which is consistent with the approaches used by HHS and the Census Bureau’s American Community Survey. Treasury will collect information on ethnicity consistent with the OMB data collection standard’s minimum ethnicity categories. For both the race and ethnicity information collection, Treasury is providing a response option of “prefer not to respond,” consistent with the HMDA data collection’s “I do not wish to provide this information.” As businesses may elect not to respond by leaving the information request blank, Treasury also provides jurisdictions the option to report “the business did not answer.”

Treasury also believes that it is important to collect information on those that identify as Middle Eastern or North African to understand whether SSBCI funds are reaching businesses principally owned by such individuals. Currently, people of Middle Eastern or North African ancestry are categorized as White under OMB data collection standards. Because Treasury must comply with these standards, Treasury is collecting information about Middle Eastern or North African ancestry through a separate ancestry question. Finally, this interim final rule requires jurisdictions to submit the required information using the format specified on Treasury’s website.²⁷

We welcome comment on any aspect of this interim final rule.

III. Regulatory Analyses

Executive Orders 12866 and 13563

Executive Orders 12866 and 13563 direct agencies to assess costs and benefits of available regulatory alternatives and, if regulation is necessary, to select regulatory approaches that maximize net benefits (including potential economic, environmental, public health and safety effects, distributive impacts, and equity). Executive Order 13563 emphasizes the importance of quantifying both costs and benefits, of reducing costs, of harmonizing rules, and of promoting flexibility. This interim final rule has been designated a “significant regulatory action,” although not economically significant, under section 3(f) of Executive Order 12866. As explained above, this interim final rule institutes reporting requirements to implement, determine compliance with, and understand the program outcomes of SSBCI, as reauthorized and amended by ARPA. As these reporting requirements focus only on data collection, this interim final rule is not economically significant. However, we welcome comments on the economic impact of this interim final rule. Particularly, Treasury welcomes comments and data on how this interim final rule may substantively affect the SSBCI program.

Executive Order 13132

Executive Order 13132 (entitled Federalism) prohibits an agency from publishing any rule that has federalism implications if this interim final rule either imposes substantial, direct compliance costs on state, local, and Tribal governments, and is not required by statute, or preempts state law, unless the agency meets the consultation and funding requirements of section 6 of the Executive Order. This interim final rule does not have federalism implications within the meaning of the Executive Order and does not impose substantial, direct compliance costs on state, local, and Tribal governments or preempt state law within the meaning of the Executive Order. The compliance costs are imposed on state, local, and Tribal governments by the Small Business Jobs Act, as amended by ARPA. Notwithstanding the above, Treasury has engaged in efforts to consult with affected state, local, and Tribal government officials and associations in the process of developing this interim final rule. Pursuant to the requirements set forth in section 8(a) of Executive Order 13132, Treasury certifies that it has complied with the requirements of Executive Order 13132.

Paperwork Reduction Act, 44 U.S.C. Chapter 35

The Paperwork Reduction Act of 1995 (44 U.S.C. 3501-3521) (PRA) states that no agency may conduct or sponsor, nor is the respondent required to respond to, an information collection unless it displays a currently valid OMB control number.

This interim final rule will add annual reporting requirements. These collections will increase total annual burden by 13,050 hours: The requirements are expected to take 500 jurisdictions 26.10 hours to complete for an annual burden of 13,050 hours. Using the standard total compensation for accountants and auditors, the estimated cost of this information collection is $673,902.²⁸

The OMB Control Number for the SSBCI information collection is 1505-0227. Comments concerning the collections of information should be directed to the Office of Recovery Programs, Department of the Treasury, 1500 Pennsylvania Avenue NW, Washington, DC 20220. Treasury welcomes comments on the compliance burdens for the information collection under this interim final rule.

Congressional Review Act

The Administrator of OMB's Office of Information and Regulatory Affairs (OIRA) has determined that this is not a major rule for purposes of Subtitle E of the Small Business Regulatory Enforcement and Fairness Act of 1996 (also known as the Congressional Review Act or CRA) (5 U.S.C. 804(2) et seq.). Under the CRA, a major rule takes effect 60 days after the rule is published in the Federal Register. 5 U.S.C. 801(a)(3).

Administrative Procedure Act

The Administrative Procedure Act (APA), 5 U.S.C. 551 et seq., generally requires public notice and an opportunity for comment before a rule becomes effective. However, the APA provides that the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply "to the extent that there is involved . . . a matter relating to agency . . . grants . . . or contracts." This interim final rule is being issued for purposes of implementation, compliance, and understanding the outcomes of the SSBCI program. While SSBCI capital funds are not considered federal financial assistance for the purposes of 31 U.S.C. subtitle V under the SSBCI statute, the SSBCI program resembles other coronavirus relief programs that Treasury is implementing. SSBCI capital funds will be disbursed to eligible jurisdictions that apply in order to establish small business lending and investment programs. This interim final rule sets forth the “process necessary to maintain. . . eligibility for federal funds,” id., as well as the “method[s] by which [jurisdictions] can . . . qualify for federal aid,” and other “integral part[s] of the grant program,” Center for Auto Safety v. Tiemann, 414 F. Supp. 215, 222 (D.D.C. 1976). Eligible jurisdictions must submit the annual information required by this interim final rule in Treasury’s prescribed format to remain eligible for SSBCI capital funding. Treasury will also use the reported data to determine whether jurisdictions are eligible for the SEDI incentive allocation. As a result, the requirements of 5 U.S.C. 553 do not apply.

The APA also provides an exception to notice-and-comment procedures “when the agency for good cause finds (and incorporates the finding and a brief statement of reasons therefor in the rules issued) that notice and public procedure thereon are impracticable, unnecessary, or contrary to the public interest.” 5 U.S.C. 553(b)(3)(B); see also 5 U.S.C. 553(d)(3) (creating an exception to the requirement of a 30-day delay before the effective date of a rule “for good cause found and published with the rule”). Even if 5 U.S.C. 553 applied, Treasury would have good cause under sections 553(b)(3)(B) and 553(d)(3) for not complying with these requirements under section 553. ARPA is a law responding to a historic economic and public health emergency; it is “extraordinary” legislation about which “both Congress and the President articulated a profound sense of ‘urgency.’” Petry v. Block, 737 F.2d 1193, 1200 (D.C.

Cir. 1984). In addition, there is an urgent need for jurisdictions to undertake the planning necessary to implement their SSBCI capital programs. Developing these programs requires an understanding of all the program requirements, including the data collection and reporting requirements implemented in this interim final rule. These requirements are immediately effective but may change when the rule is finalized. Without having clarity on how the SSBCI program requirements will interact with existing restrictions on lenders' and other financial entities' availability to collect this data, jurisdictions may have difficulty attracting lenders and other financial entities to implement SSBCI programs, which could hinder their efforts to deploy the allocation for SEDI-owned and controlled businesses as Congress intended. Treasury understands that many jurisdictions require immediate rules on which they can rely in order to develop sound SSBCI programs. The statutory urgency and practical necessity are good cause to forego the ordinary requirements of notice-and-comment rulemaking.

Regulatory Flexibility Analysis

The Regulatory Flexibility Act (RFA) generally requires that when an agency issues a proposed rule, or a final rule pursuant to section 553(b) of the Administrative Procedure Act or another law, the agency must prepare a regulatory flexibility analysis that meets the requirements of the RFA and publish such analysis in the Federal Register. 5 U.S.C. 603, 604. Rules that are exempt from notice and comment under the APA are also exempt from the RFA requirements, including the requirement to conduct a regulatory flexibility analysis. Since this interim final rule is exempt from the notice and comment requirements of the APA, Treasury is not required to conduct a regulatory flexibility analysis.

§ 35.26 Authority, scope, and purpose.

(a) Authority and scope. This subpart is issued by the U.S. Department of the Treasury pursuant to Sections 3007 and 3010 of the Small Business Jobs Act of 2010, as amended by the American Rescue Plan Act of 2021 (12 U.S.C. 5706, 5709).

(b) Purpose. The U.S. Department of the Treasury is collecting demographics-related data regarding those who own or control businesses that receive a loan, investment, other credit

§ 35.27 Definitions.

In this subpart:
